Job Description

VISITING TEACHING INNOVATION LIBRARIAN, DIVERSITY RESIDENT

The Indiana University Libraries invites applications for a Teaching Innovation Librarian as a part of the IU Libraries third cohort of the Diversity Residency Program. Designed for a new or early-career individual, this three-year, non-renewable position provides opportunities for the incumbent to apply professional knowledge and skills, develop a professional network, and gain valuable experience toward career goals and opportunities in academic librarianship. As a member of the Association of College & Research Libraries (ACRL) Diversity Alliance (<https://www.ala.org/acrl/issues/diversityalliance>), the IU Libraries' Diversity Residents are part of a cohort established by ACRL Diversity Alliance member libraries.

The purpose of the resident program is to provide underrepresented racial and ethnic candidates with professional positions, engage them in professional learning and service at Indiana University, and support their success in academic librarianship. The Diversity Resident Program is a part of the IU
