Job Description

The Department of Economics invites applications to fill a full-time faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor, starting in September 2023. While candidates with expertise in any of the areas of Energy and Environmental Economics will be considered, we are especially interested in those candidates whose research and teaching combine all aspects of applied microeconomics that complement the department's existing strengths in those areas. Candidates are expected to develop an outstanding research program, provide excellent teaching both at the undergraduate and graduate levels, and supervise student research including masters and doctoral theses.
