concentrations. We are one of the nation's leading masters programs in international affairs.

Primary duties associated with this position involve instruction, training and advising for students for careers in international affairs across our four concentrations. In addition, this position will be responsible for curriculum development of graduate-level programming and courses. Practical work experience is required. This experience could be working for the government, military, intelligence community, industry, a think tank or related organization. Preferred applicants will have experience teaching at the university level and demonstrated ability to effectively participate in scholarly activities.

The University's mission involves three primary functions across our faculty cohort: instruction, research, and service. Each year, various ranking faculty work with the Office of the Dean to delineate their distribution of effort (DOE). This DOE outlines how faculty will spend their time. Of course, the DOE can fluctuate depending on an array of factors (e.g., grant funding, new course development, etc.).

The University of Kentucky offers comprehensive benefits. To find out more information, click Our Benefits | UK Human Resources \(uky.edu\).

Applicants are requested to submit a curriculum vitae (resume), a letter of interest detailing applicant's goodness of fit for the position (upload as Cover Letter), contact information for at least three professional references (upload as Specific Request #1), and relevant teaching experience (upload as Specific Request #2).

Application reviews will begin Oct 1. and continue until the position has been filled.
