Job Description

Job Description

The Resource Sharing and Curriculum Support Librarian facilitates discovery, access, and use of educational resources and materials found anywhere in the world. The librarian develops strategies for enhancing library support for teaching, learning, and research at Stevens. The librarian is responsible for Interlibrary Loan operations and serves as a knowledgeable resource for students, faculty, and staff on scholarly communication, Open Educational Resources, fair use, and open access. This position reports to the Library Director. Newly degreed librarians are welcome and encouraged to apply. This position is not tenure-eligible.

Responsibilities include:

- Perform Interlibrary Loan (ILL) duties and use electronic ILL management systems, including OCLC Tipasa.
- Coordinate the retrieval and/or scanning of books, journal articles, and other materials.
- Forward articles to patrons and borrowing libraries via ILL management systems or via email.
- Maintain positive relationships with fellow ILL lending institutions.
- Supervise a small team of library graduate student employees.
- Identify and interpret patrons' needs.
- Prepare and report ILL statistics.
- Establish a curriculum support working group and develop and sustain strategic partnerships and effective working relationships with campus partners.
- Liaise with faculty to enhance library support for teaching, learning, and research.
- Collect and analyze data and prepare and present clear and relevant reports and presentations that document the library's role in supporting teaching, learning, and research at Stevens.
- Create and lead education and outreach workshops for students, faculty, and staff and prepare subject guides and tutorials related to ILL services, Open Educational Resources (OER), open access, and scholarly communication.
- Provide education on the evaluation and implementation of open and affordable learning materials, and collaborate with faculty, staff, and other campus partners to promote awareness of these resources.
- Identify library resources that can serve as affordable learning materials and advise library staff on how library services can be designed to effectively support the adoption of these materials in Stevens courses.
- Engage in activities aimed at enhancing services and resources in alignment with Stevens' commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion.
- Liaise with the Stevens Bookstore, Office of the Provost, IT, and academic departments to communicate required textbooks and reading materials.
- Provide support to faculty on fair use and using copyrighted resources within the university's course management system.
- Engage with local and regional library networks for professional development, and maintain awareness of trends and developments in the field.
- Provide in-person and online reference and research support.
- Position reports on-site to campus with some remote work flexibility.
