The Wee Kim Wee School of Communication and Information (WKWSCI) at Nanyang Technological University and CNRS@CREATE is jointly looking for a Research Assistant (RA) to join the Shaping Public Adaptive Capacity for Environmental Infectious Diseases (SPACE) Project. This project aims to develop a research protocol for infectious disease prediction and prevention in Singapore.

Established in 1992, the WKWSCI is the only full-fledged communication school in Singapore and is a world-class centre of excellence with an international faculty, state-of-the-art research laboratories, and global institutional affiliations. CNRS@CREATE, the first overseas subsidiary of the French National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS), acts as a programme operator to build and conduct large interdisciplinary research programs. It is a trans-continental hub for research with unique opportunities for high quality faculties, researchers, and postgraduate/postdoctoral students. It is located in Singapore, in the Campus for Research Excellence and Technological Enterprise (CREATE), and international research campus and innovation hub.
