Ng? k?rero m? te t?ranga - About the role

The Lecturer in Anthropology is an exciting opportunity to make a significant contribution to Te Kura Whatu Oho Mauri, the School of Psychological and Social Sciences, within the field of Anthropology.

We are looking for a dynamic individual who will bring professional and academic experience to be part of a team dedicated to excellence in research, teaching, and postgraduate supervision. You will have the skills and experience to provide leadership and innovation in teaching. Along with teaching, your well-defined programme of research will help to advance research capacities, develop a range of strategic research initiatives and engage with the professional community.

Salary will be in the range of $87,500 to $104,322 per year based on skills, knowledge and experience brought to the position. This is a permanent, full-time role (37.5 hours a week), based on our Hillcrest Campus.

For more information on the role, please see the position description.

For a confidential conversation about the role, please contact Vincent Reid, Head of School, vincent.reid@waikato.ac.nz

All applications must be submitted through the online portal, emailed applications will not be accepted.

Ko wai koe? - Who are you?

You will have a PhD in Anthropology or a related field, with a defined research programme including clear evidence of conducting high quality research. You will be a committed academic with a strong background in Anthropology. You will have a demonstrated ability to teach and inspire students, coupled with excellent communication skills. You will be passionate about the study of human experiences and eager to bring your knowledge and expertise to a supportive and collaborative academic environment.

Don't meet every single requirement? Studies have shown that some groups of people are less likely to apply to jobs unless they meet every single qualification. We are dedicated to building a diverse, inclusive and authentic workplace, so if you're excited about one of these roles but your past experience doesn't align perfectly, we encourage you to get in touch or to just apply. You may be just the right candidate for this or other roles.

Ko wai m?tou? - Who are we?

Te W?nanga o Ng? Kete, the Division of Arts, Law, Psychology, and Social Sciences (ALPSS), brings together a diverse and dynamic range of academic disciplines. Te Kura Whatu Oho Mauri, the School of Psychological and Social Sciences, focuses on the foundational aspects of psychology, covering areas such as behaviour, cognition, and indigenous psychology, in both teaching and research. It also fosters a strong research culture with a wide array of interests, methodologies, and contexts.

The Anthropology Programme offers degrees at the Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctoral levels, with a current focus on sociocultural anthropology. The programme is known for attracting indigenous students and fostering collegiality with both local and international academic networks. The programme explores a wide range of issues, including the environment and climate change, racism and ethnic conflict, religion and spirituality, media and visual culture, politics, power relationships, finance, and trade.

He aha ng? take me tonono mai ai koe? - Why should you apply for this position?

We want you to be part of our success! Our University stands proudly on the world stage as a provider of future-focused, international education and an active player in global research. Our rankings reflect these strengths. Working with us means you'll enjoy a satisfying work environment with many benefits.

The University of Waikato is distinctive for the diversity of its staff and students, and encourages applicants with the relevant capabilities from all backgrounds to apply.
