Position description

The Cal Mania (CALM) Laboratory seeks a Postdoctoral Scholar Employee, with a focus on bipolar disorder. The Postdoctoral Scholar will be expected to contribute to research to study circadian disruptions in bipolar disorder, and whether dietary interventions can strengthen circadian rhythms and sleep, and thereby contribute to improvements in symptoms and quality of life. The study will integrate diagnostic and symptom severity assessments, hormone, and ambulatory assessments of mood, sleep and dietary measures. The selected Postdoctoral Scholar candidate will work with Professor, Sheri Johnson as well as collaborators at UC Berkeley Calm Laboratory, and the rest of the research team to help achieve the laboratory's goals.

Responsibilities include:

- Research: Leading efforts to organize and analyze data obtained from current and archival research, working with Dr. Johnson and laboratory members to plan and write scientific publications and presentations, designing and conducting research studies to expand the lab's research and pursue the postdoctoral's own research interests.
- Clinical Training, supervision and crisis management: Train junior team members on diagnostic and symptom severity interviews, routinely review their fidelity and reliability to interview
